

Where students are at home.

Host Student Housing Limited are the managing agent of your accommodation.

We have been in dialogue with the various building owners with regard to the current Covid-19 situation and have reflected these discussions within the Cancellation Policy for your property.

We feel it is really important to let all of our residents know that during this rapidly changing environment we're prioritising the welfare of residents and staff. For many students, our accommodation is their primary home and our buildings still have a high level of occupation. Ensuring we can continue to provide all our students with access to safe, secure and managed accommodation is essential.

For some of you, we know that you have felt your best option is to leave your student accommodation to return to your family home or alternative accommodation during this unsettling time.

While we understand that you must make the right decision for your health and wellbeing, and that of your family, we regret that we cannot terminate your contract early if you have decided to leave your accommodation.

We realise that this decision will be disappointing for you, but we have been informed by the Universities Minister that students will still receive tuition fees and maintenance payments for term three as scheduled, whether or not campuses are closed, or learning has moved online. The government has also outlined information advising that tenants living in rented accommodation should continue to pay their rent as normal. There is a copy of this advice on our website.

We will remain open and your room is still available to you until the end of your tenancy agreement. We understand that you may currently not be in residence at present, but we are hopeful that you will choose to return to your home with us once the government restrictions on travel are lifted and it is safe to do so. Your rent payments cover the contracted period whether you are present or not, similar to when many tenants return home for Christmas, Easter and other holiday periods.

Please be advised that discussions are ongoing with all of our building owners and we will update the relevant site's Cancellation Policy (below) when we have received authorisation to do so. Please therefore keep checking this page for further updates.

Our staff are extremely busy dealing with the Covid-19 situation, by ensuring the health and safety of both our residents and our staff and so, we do thank you for your patience and understanding in these unprecedented times.
